W. H. (Jake) Seagle Shot and Injured By Police Today

Said to Be One of Most Widely Sought Criminals in United States

WANTED IN COLO.

Among 4 Men Who Robbed Lamar, Colo., Bank When 4 Were killed

BRANSON, Mo., Oct. 14.—(P)—A man who has been identified as W. H. (Jake) Seagle, long sought in connection with the Lamar, Colorado, bank robbery and slaying of four men, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Kansas City, Mo., officers today.

Seagle was shot as he attempted to board a Missouri Pacific train. He had purchased a ticket to Hollister, Mo., a summer resort near here.

Lamar, Colo., Oct. 14.—(P)—William Harrison (Jake) Seagle, who was reported to have been shot by officers at Branson, Mo., was one of the most widely sought criminals in the United States. He has been hunted throughout the entire country and even into Mexico, but has always managed to elude the officers and prevent being captured.

Search has been conducted for him in connection with the slaying of four men and robbery of a bank here in 1926. Most of Seagle's companions are dead, having been executed.

The trial of Ralph E. Seagle, brother of Jake, Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshire, were tried and convicted of the slaying of A. N. Torrish, president of the bank. All three were hanged in July at the state prison at Canon City.

J. L. Torrish, son of A. N., Dr. W. W. Weinger and E. A. Koeniger, who was the bank teller were the other three victims of the bandits.

Rich Missourian's Daughter Kidnaped

Forced to Leave Home at Greenfield, Driving Her Own Car

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 14.—(P)—Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24, daughter of Benton Wilson, millionaire oil man, was kidnaped, presumably for ransom, by one or more men who forced the young woman to leave her home driving her own automobile.

The woman's mother told officers she left with a masked man who entered the house, carrying a shotgun. After demanding money and being told none was in the house, Mrs. Wilson said the intruder demanded which of the two women could drive an automobile. When Mrs. McKinley answered in the affirmative the kidnaper bound the mother and left with the daughter.

A half-hour later Mrs. Wilson escaped from her hands and notified officers. Sheriff Olin Killingsworth sent deputies to watch all nearby highways but no trace of the kidnaped woman has been found.

At the time of the kidnaping Wilson, his two sons, and Harold McKinley, the young woman's husband were in Kansas City, having gone there with a consignment of cattle.

Girl Pedestrian Hurt Critically

Driver of Car Near Lake Village Says Lights Blinded Him

LAKE VILLAGE, Oct. 14.—Lois Keeton, aged 16, who lives with her parents on Macon Lake plantation, six miles north of this place, was struck by an automobile on the Arkansas-Louisiana highway about 7 Monday night and injured perhaps fatally.

The car was driven by Andrew Alpe who with his two brothers was going from Lake Village to Arkansas City. The girl was walking on the side of the highway alone a short distance from her home. Alpe said that he was prevented from seeing the girl by tall weeds and by the blinding lights of an approaching car. He said that he was not aware of the girl's presence until she stepped in front of his car a second before the accident. The girl was walking in the same direction that Alpe's car was traveling.

The impact threw her several feet into the air and she was unconscious when Alpe and his brothers picked her up. They brought her to the hospital here where it was said that she sustained several broken bones and was suffering from serious internal injuries. Her condition is reported to be critical.

Amendment Number 25 Prohibits Reducing Pay

Amendment Prohibits the Legislature From Reducing Salaries of Justices of the Supreme Court. Present Salary $7,500 Per Year

Editor's Note.—This is the seventh in a series dealing with the nine proposed constitutional amendments and two initiated acts to be voted upon at the general election November 4. The following deals with proposed amendment No. 25.

By HENRY N. DORRIS
Associated Press Staff Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 14.—(P)—Proposed amendment No. 25, if adopted by the people at the general election November 4, would prohibit the legislature from reducing the salaries of justices of the supreme court.

The Arkansas Taxpayers' Protective Association, which is sponsoring this amendment alone with six other proposed amendments to be voted upon November 4, in its published arguments has contended that supreme court justices should be removed from any position in which they might be "intimidated." At present, the legislature had power to fix salaries of supreme court judges, except that it may not reduce the salary of justice during his term of office.

The proposed amendment read as follows: "The compensation of judges of the supreme court shall be as now provided by law, and shall not be diminished except by amendment to the constitution."

The present salary of judges is $7,500 a year each, fixed by Amendment No. 7 to the constitution, adopted in 1924.

This amendment gave the legislature power to increase the number from five to seven judges, which has been done, and to fix compensation except not to reduce salaries during the terms to which judges are elected.

Amendment No. 7 provides that "when the salary of the judges under this amendment ($7,500) shall have been established (which was done by enabling act No. 205 of 1925) salaries shall not thereafter be increased or diminished during their respective terms."

The proposed amendment simply would prohibit at any time reduction in the salaries of the judges, except by further amendment to the constitution.

The proposed amendment read as follows: "The compensation of judges of the supreme court shall be as now provided by law, and shall not be diminished except by amendment to the constitution."

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 14.—(P)—More than 100 negroes, virtually the whole negro population, had left town tonight after the confession of three negroes, two men and a woman, to the murder of Harry Panchoat and wounding of Paul A. Ritter, both white, Sunday.

The only two negro families left here were guarded tonight by militiamen, called by Gov. Henry S. Caulfield at the request of Sheriff Ziegler.

The three negroes, giving the names J. C. Lee, 28, Guy Taylor, 26, and Vera Rogers, 30, were taken secretly to the Hillsboro jail, 30 miles away, after their confession that they shot and killed Panchoat, a line kilt laborer and shot Ritter and threw him into the Mississippi river during a holiday. They admitted throwing stones at Ritter when he attempted to swim to shore.

From the Hillsboro jail the negroes were taken to St. Louis. No further threat of mob action was expected. Governor Caulfield's calling out the two National Guard companies was hastened by a message from the Commission for Interracial Co-operation of Atlanta, Ga., asking him to "take steps to save Missouri and the South from the blot of another lynching."

$4,000 IS RECOVERED

Sentenced to Life in State Prison After Admitting Murder Charge

CENTREVILLE, Mich., Oct. 14.—(P)—A little more than 12 hours after killing a state policeman and robbing a bank at Battle Creek, Thomas Martin, 30 and James Gallagher, 28 were sentenced by circuit court to life imprisonment in Jackson prison.

The pair pleaded guilty to the murder charge. State Trooper, John Burke, was shot and killed by Martin and Gallagher near the state line of Indiana as he approached them on a highway after the bank robbery.

After robbing the East end branch of the Old Merchants Trust and Savings company at Battle Creek the men fled in an automobile. Trooper Burke followed them and as he neared their car on a highway he was shot down. Other troopers took up the chase and captured the pair after they had abandoned their automobile.

$4,000 taken in the bank robbery was recovered by the officers after the arrest of the pair.

Amendment Filed to Parnell Expense

Original Expense Contained $1,000 Error Governor Charges

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 14.—(P)—Discovering today that Governor Harvey Parnell had filed an amendment to his original expense account in the recent primary caused the Republican party in the state, to change their plans in challenging the original expense account filed by the governor.

When Secretary of State Higgins was called today for a certified copy of Parnell's expense, which the Republicans charged was an excessive amount, exceeding the sum allowed by law, the amendment was disclosed. The original expense was listed as $5,950.30. The corrected total is $4,950.30.

Original expense was filed by the governor on September 8th, three days before the time for filing had expired. The corrected statement in a letter, amending the original filing was written by the governor to Mr. Higgins later. It states, "through error the $2,940.85 shown in the original filing of expense for printing and advertising should have read $1,940.85."

Wallace Townsend, Republican National Committee chairman in commenting on the case said he did not know what action would be taken. A meeting of the Republican leaders was called at once.

Death Rides the Highways

THREE persons were killed and half a dozen seriously injured in highway accidents affecting local people last week-end.

Two Rosston farmers and a highway truck collided at an open road intersection in Nevada county Saturday morning. The farmers were killed, and the son of one was hurt.

Saturday night a Hope family turned their car over on a dangerous curve between this city and Arkadelphia. The mother was killed; the father and two children were severely injured.

We read these items in our daily newspaper, and suffer a momentary revulsion. Anyone who has ever been on the scene of a fatal automobile accident knows what we are talking about. There is nothing more terrible than the spectacle of a familiar servant like the family automobile suddenly turning berserk and killing or maiming its passengers.

Two great factors contribute to accidents on the public highway. In the first place, there is the natural hazard of the crooked, poorly built road, dangerous to modern high-speed transportation. The other factor is man's tendency to forget. He has driven automobiles for many years now, and lulled into a false sense of security he lets a mental lapse breed death and destruction along the public highway.

The correction of the first trouble is being gradually brought about as we rebuild our state roads. The highway of today is straight, level and free from railroad crossings. This new type of construction will save thousands of lives in years to come.

But the mental lapse is still with us—and will be as long as man continues to use the wonderful and yet devastating machines which he has created out of his own hand. We need to be careful. We need to be systematic in our driving on the public highway—because we never know just where destruction is going to strike again.

The Far East Wakes Up

AN indication that the Far East is beginning to shake off a still more of its dependence on the occidental world is contained in a report recently submitted to the Pepperell Manufacturing Co. of Boston by Charles K. Moser, chief of the Far East Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington.

Mr. Moser reports that the American textile industry is facing bad conditions in the Orient and is going to face worse. Textile exports to the Far East have been greatly reduced in recent years—to the dismay of manufacturers in Massachusetts and England—and they are going to be cut still further.

The answer lies in the fact that the Orientals are beginning to provide for themselves. The Japanese, in particular, are furnishing an aggressive and alert competition. In fact, Moser finds that the Japanese right now are making textiles on a basis of efficiency and economy probably unequaled anywhere else in the world. Quite naturally, they are getting the Orient's business; indeed, they are beginning to sell their goods in Great Britain itself.

Nor does this come by chance.

"Progress," says Mr. Moser, "is the keynote of all Japanese endeavor at this time. Japan's big industrialists have sent their bright young men all over the world for training. They return with more than a wide technical training; they return with the language and methods of the western industrial nations, and they know how to use them to advantage. The fact is that the Japanese people have become, or are rapidly becoming, a truly Western people in the East. The spirit of modern industrial progress has taken possession of them, and nowhere is this more clearly in evidence than in the cotton textile industry."

All of this is extremely interesting. The day when the Orient loomed as one great market, fit for exploitation by the white races, seems to be passing. The Orient is beginning to learn the white man's tricks. Japan has already learned them; one of these days China will learn them as well.

In the long run, however, this will be beneficial to American and European nations, and not a handicap. Anything that lifts the prosperity level of any large section of the world will help everybody. One class of exporters may be suffering right now from the Orient's rebirth, but in the end we shall be the gainers.

Great Paper of the West

THE KANSAS CITY STAR'S celebration of its fiftieth anniversary recalls how William Rockhill Nelson founded a newspaper that was different from all others in the field. He was without actual newspaper experience, had limited capital, but had certain clearly defined ideals of public service. He was extremely fortunate in finding men who understood his ideas and were able to make the paper serve the public as Nelson directed, says the Ohio State Journal.

The Star has been a great citizen. Under its leadership the transportation importance of the city was established. It helped secure a modern system of water works owned by the city. More than any other influence, the Star was leader in the fight to secure parks and boulevards, an impressive system of municipal beautification. It was successful financially. — Camden News.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NRA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — You hardly ever see them any more, but there are still more than 538,000,000 silver dollars in existence.

The suggestion of a new and smaller silver dollar by Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada, who is interested in the stricken silver market, gives rise to the question as to what became of the old silver dollars.

As one might suspect, the people found the big silver dollar so bulky and heavy that they preferred the silver certificate or paper dollar bill.

Oddie has proposed a silver dollar not much larger than the present half-dollar and a new half-dollar nearer to the size of the present quarter, with the present quarter left unchanged.

He believes that no one would object to carrying such a silver dollar around any more than they mind the occasional half dollars in their pockets. Paper dollars are kept in circulation at a cost of about 2 per cent a year, whereas the loss from abrasion of silver is almost infinitesimal. And of course the popularizing of a silver dollar would be a great boon for the silver mines of the far west.

Some Lost, Some Saved

The treasury says there are 38,234,000 of the large silver dollars—sometimes called "cartwheels"—outstanding. Of course these are not all in circulation. Some of them have rolled down into sewers, and otherwise out of circulation. Many are kept in banks. Others are hidden in old socks under boards in attics, treasured by benighted persons who still hold to the idea that silver money is much more valuable than paper money.

The treasury holds 495,000,000 silver dollars, of which all but about 6,000,000 are kept in the treasury here and the various mints or assay offices to cover nearly 490,000,000 silver certificates outstanding.

The 6,000,000 silver dollars are on call if anyone wants them. The treasury would be glad to get them into circulation, but it can only do so when they are called for by the banks. And the demand is very slight.

The last silver dollars coined were those of 1928. Way back in 1904, however, such coinage had ceased through the repeal of the Sherman Act, but there was still a great supply stored in the treasury.

In 1918, Congress passed the Pittman Act, authorizing the secretary of the treasury to change $350,000,000 in silver then in the treasury into bullion to sell to Great Britain, which badly needed bullion for the redemption of the rupee in India.

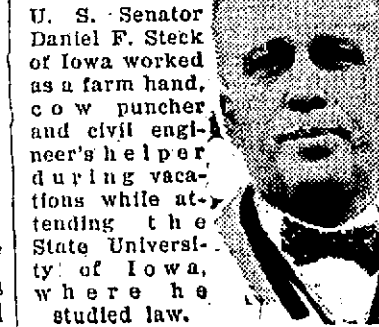

Provides For Replacement

The act also provided for replacement of the money by purchase of American silver at a dollar an ounce. Britain bought 270,000,000 dollars, which the treasury replaced as specified, coining "cartwheels" from 1921 to 1928.

Senator Oddie's proposed reduction in the size of the silver dollar would correspond with the declined purchasing power of silver. A 1930 silver dollar, he figures, should be about 60 per cent as large as the 1913 silver dollar in order to have it represent an equivalent purchasing power.

In 1918 and 1919, silver was worth more than $1 an ounce on the open market, reaching $1.12 in the former year. But last year, the price declined to 52.3 cents, which was 4.9 cents lower than 1928.

ONCE UPON A TIME

U. S. Senator Daniel F. Steck of Iowa worked as a farm hand, a cow puncher, and civil engineer's helper during vacations while attending the State University of Iowa, where he studied law.

BARBS

The congressman who made the proposal that advertising space be sold on postage stamps hopes, of course, that it will be carried out to the letter.

Even after the prohibition question is settled the barber will still want to know if it will be wet or dry.

The fact the 1930 grape crop in New York state will be 10,000 tons smaller than that of a year ago may mean that farmers there are not interested in raising crops this year.

The trade journal which announced that tall furniture was going out of fashion was anxious, no doubt, to give you the low down.

Cosmeticians are doing an increasing business. And it may be because even the good dye young these days.

If those South American presidents think they had it tough, let them be thankful they are not the president of a state university trying to get an appropriation from the legislature.

Campaign Methods Have Made Change

Radio and "Canned Publicity" Supersede Orators Forum

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(UP)—High-power salesmanship by invisible salesmen is a feature of the political technique in the national congressional campaign of 1930.

The radio, the follow-up letter, and the "canned" publicity of professional writers have largely superseded the orators forum, the personal appeal, and the independent editorial opinion.

The earnest candidate now has to worry about static and the possibility that his address may not be concluded within the allotted time, between a jazz concert and the bed-time story, instead of hecklers.

Instead of going to the factories and shaking hands with workers, a candidate now may call in his stenographer and statistician, and dictate a tabular statement to be issued to a mailing-list of 100,000 provided by a special bureau.

From the standpoint of its methods, the campaign is not without merit. A senator can address a home town crowd by telephone and radio broadcast without leaving the capital. He can make declarations without risking the ardors of a debate. The radio listener, in turn, can turn the dial and remove himself from the realm of farm surpluses to the perhaps more talk of a beauty specialist.

Behind it all is the fact that rival parties are making a prodigious effort, aided by modern sales technique, to sway the nation's mass mind. How far this technique is adapted to politics remains to be demonstrated.

Some of the candidates are not "sold" on the newer political technique. Baby-kissing handshaking and old-fashioned appeals for "the home" still have a timely importance in many districts. But the big political operators are thinking in terms of national "hookups" and 100,000-copy pamphlets.

"Shooting Hurricanes" Will Not Stop Them

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Richard W. Gray, government meteorologist here, asked to comment on "shooting hurricanes" to dispel danger from them, said:

"All the explosives in the world, fired into a hurricane, would have as little effect as a boy shooting it with a beanshooter. People fail to realize there are outside forces which cause storms."

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Alaska may be included in the 1931 itinerary of the National Reliability air tour, according to Ray Collins, tour manager. It is restricted to commercial aircraft.

The Alaskan trip is to be discussed when four officials meet early in November in Detroit to formulate plans for the seventh annual event.

JUST HOW SAFE ARE YOU AT HOME?

IF YOU think of danger in terms of trains, steamships, airplanes, automobiles, machinery and the like, please remember that more than 7,000 lives were lost last year in American homes as a result of fire.

More than 60 per cent of all fires occur in homes. The "safety" of your hearthstone loses some of its assurance when you consider this record of tragedy.

To improve such conditions the Stock Fire Insurance companies—representing the great bulk of fire insurance written in this country—maintain many helpful services.

For Greater Home Safety

The Department of Building Construction operated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters spreads a vast amount of information regarding building materials and their proper assembling.

Stock Fire Insurance engineers constantly survey the fire defenses of cities and work with public officials to improve them.

Underwriters' Laboratories, established by Stock Fire Insurance, tests and labels thousands of devices used in the home—electrical apparatus, convenience equipment, heating plants, fire extinguishers and utilities of many descriptions.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

has a large personnel and many facilities that are always available in connection with construction, maintenance, protection, and fire prevention. Its record in reducing the average cost of fire insurance over a long period of years is partly the result of its efforts to make home life safer.

ABOUT HERE TODAY

Advocate enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she leaves the father she has supposed dead to enter a new world. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

ANGELINE ROGERS, Celia's mother, divorced Mitchell and remarried and is now a widow. HARRY SHIELDS, young newsboy, who photographs her in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore, Celia promised to be loyal to his father. She is lonely in her new home.

Mitchell takes EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections and agrees to invite the girl to her Long Island home for a week-end and there Celia meets TONY JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character. Mrs. Parsons encourages the match.

Celia treats Jordan coolly at first but is won by his romantic love making after he has rescued her from drowning. TONY JORDAN, a socially prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. With Mrs. Parsons' assistance Mitchell arranges for Celia to be in the honor of his daughter's 18th birthday. The party is a dinner dance. Jordan persuades Celia to leave early.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

CELIA'S heart was pounding as she ran up the steps of the old stone house. It must be very late. Suppose her father was angry, even after Evelyn had explained. She tried to open the door. It would not move. For a minute the girl stood terrified. She had been locked out!

Helplessly she looked up and down the street. There was none to tell her what to do. But then, how could there be? This was her home. She must find a way to arouse someone inside. Then she realized that she was acting ridiculously. The bell, of course! She pressed it firmly.

Someone was coming. She could hear the footsteps. The lock was turning now.

"Celia!"

John Mitchell stood in the hallway looking out at her.

The girl tried to muster a smile. She held her velvet cloak about her nervously.

"I'm sorry, father," she began. "I hope you haven't worried about me. Mrs. Parsons promised—"

"Celia, come inside!"

Mitchell's voice was harsh and his manner coldly formal. He stepped aside so the girl could enter. The atmosphere told her at once that something was wrong.

Celia hesitated. Her father went ahead into the drawing room, and she followed.

"Do you know what time it is?" the man demanded. He was angry.

Her eyes darted to the clock on the mantle. Two-thirty-five was what the dial said.

"I didn't know," she answered. "I didn't know it was so late. Didn't Mrs. Parsons tell you I was coming home?"

"Mrs. Parsons? Don't try to bring her into this! A nice time for a young girl to be getting home! Celia, I can't understand this. I never expected such a thing could happen! I thought this evening I was doing something to please you. Why do you suppose I gave that party at the hotel? And your birthday present—the ring! Is this the way you show gratitude?"

THE girl was almost crying.

"But, father," she begged. "Won't you listen to me? I didn't mean to be ungrateful! I—oh, I don't know what I can say! Mrs. Parsons said it would be all right. I didn't know you'd feel like this!"

"Celia," Mitchell said sternly, "I warn you not to falsify! Mrs. Parsons had nothing to do with this. I know that very well, and I warn you not to try to deceive me!"

"But I'm not! I'm not trying to deceive you. I told Mrs. Parsons I was leaving and she said it would be all right!"

"Stop! I'll not listen to anything of the sort! Will you please tell me, young lady, where you've been for the last two hours?"

Celia was crying now. The dainty handkerchief of chiffon and lace was a limp wand. She tried to brush the tears away, but they would not stop. One velvet cuff was moist and spotted.

"Stop crying!" her father insisted, "and tell me where you've been!"

"I—I'm trying to!"

Mitchell waited, unmoved by her tears. At last the girl dried her red-rimmed eyes and controlled her voice enough to talk.

"I came home with Tony Jordan—"

"Who is he?" her father demanded.

"He—he was at the party. He's the one who saved my life at the Boat Club."

"Humph! What was he doing at this party?"

"Mrs. Parsons invited him. I asked her to."

"I see. And how does it happen that you come home with this young man and arrive an hour and a half after I got here—after leaving Evelyn Parsons at her apartment?"

The girl had to wait several seconds, rubbing at her eyes and coughing to clear her throat before she could answer.

"We went for a little ride—just through the park. I didn't think it late, and so many people had left the party I thought it would be all right. The others were all dancing—"

"So you went for a ride. In the park! Celia Mitchell, I wouldn't have believed that a daughter of mine could do such a thing. Here I've tried to introduce you to young people of the right sort. I've tried to give you everything in the world a girl should have and you—riding with a young man in the park!"

He turned his back and walked away as though the thought were too much. Suddenly he circled about.

"How much do you know this young man?" he demanded. "Who are his people? What does he do?"

Celia admitted between sobs that she did not know. Never in her life had she been so humiliated, so stormed at.

"There is one thing you are to understand from now on," John Mitchell said firmly. "You are not to see this Jordan again! I mean it! A young man who keeps a girl out until this time of night is not the sort for any respectable young woman to associate with!"

There was a quick answer on Celia's tongue, but she checked it. Didn't her father realize times had changed since his boyhood? She thought of the guests at Mrs. Parsons' house party going for a swim at midnight.

"Do you understand what I'm saying to you?" he asked.

"Yes, father."

"Then go to your room. It's nearly morning. If your grandmother should have any idea of what you've done tonight I'd hate to picture the consequences! Be quiet as you go up the stairs so not to wake her."

CELIA went. She was a pitiful little figure as she mounted the stairs.

Softly she turned the knob, opening the door of her bedroom. Then she closed it and switched on the lights. A sorry replica of herself in damaged finery greeted her from the triple mirrors across the room.

The girl went nearer and surveyed herself. Swollen eyes red-rimmed. Hair awry. Her cheeks marked by tear stains, and the front of her frock soiled. What a sight!

Her beautiful birthday party—even the memory of the drive with Tony—was ruined now. Celia dropped her coat on a chair. Her eyes were smarting and filled with tears so that it was hard to undo the fasteners which held her dress. At last she had it off.

She dropped to the bed and let the sobs come. Her shoulders rose and fell convulsively. Finally the tears stopped and she lay quiet. Celia noticed the ring on her finger.

She sat up and took the ring off. It brought her misery back with a fresh start. Her father had said that she should never again see Tony. How could she keep such a promise?

It did not occur to the girl to blame Jordan for her unhappiness. It did not occur to her to suspect Evelyn Parsons of treachery.

Finally the girl turned out the light and crept into bed. She lay in the darkness for several minutes. Then she got up again, snatched the light and went to her desk, fumbling through a drawer of papers. She found what she sought and returned to bed.

An hour later Celia dropped to sleep. Beneath her cheek, damp with tears, was the birthday letter from her mother.

She telephoned Evelyn Parsons at 10:30 the next morning. Rose said her mistress was having breakfast.

"Will you tell her it's Miss Mitchell calling?" Celia persisted. "Tell her I want to speak to her. It's important."

In a few moments Evelyn's dulcet tones came back over the wire.

"Why, Celia, dear, good morning! How're you feeling after the party?"

Celia swallowed. Then she said: "Good morning! I'm—oh, I'm all right, thank you. Mrs. Parsons, I want to see you. I—I want to talk to you about something. Could I come over right away?"

"Why, child—your voice sounds as though something were the matter. Of course, come along!"

CELIA stopped just long enough to tell her grandmother she was going to call on Mrs. Parsons, and to wait for Thompson to bring the car around.

She reached Evelyn's fashionable apartment, stepped into the elevator, and a minute later Rose was ushering her into Mrs. Parsons' boudoir.

"Darling! You've been crying!" The older woman's sympathetic tone broke down barriers of restraint. Celia told her all that had happened. Would Mrs. Parsons tell her how she could ever gain her father's respect again? How could she ever undo this tangle?

Evelyn comforted her. She declared that she herself would talk to John Mitchell.

The girl returned home feeling her burdens lightened. When she saw her father that evening he was cordial as usual. Celia began to believe her clouds were banished.

And then Friday morning she went again with her grandmother to Charlotte's shop.

Mrs. Mitchell had decided she needed a new tea gown. She stood on the fitting block as a seamstress smoothed down folds of lavender crepe. The seamstress dropped her ball of pins. It rolled within an inch of Celia's toe.

"Let me get it for you!" the girl said. She picked up the object and returned it smiling.

Her grandmother stiffened. She made no comment until they were in the car again. Then she said: "Celia, your conduct speaking to that sewing woman was outrageous. Don't you know you can't treat tradespeople as equals?"

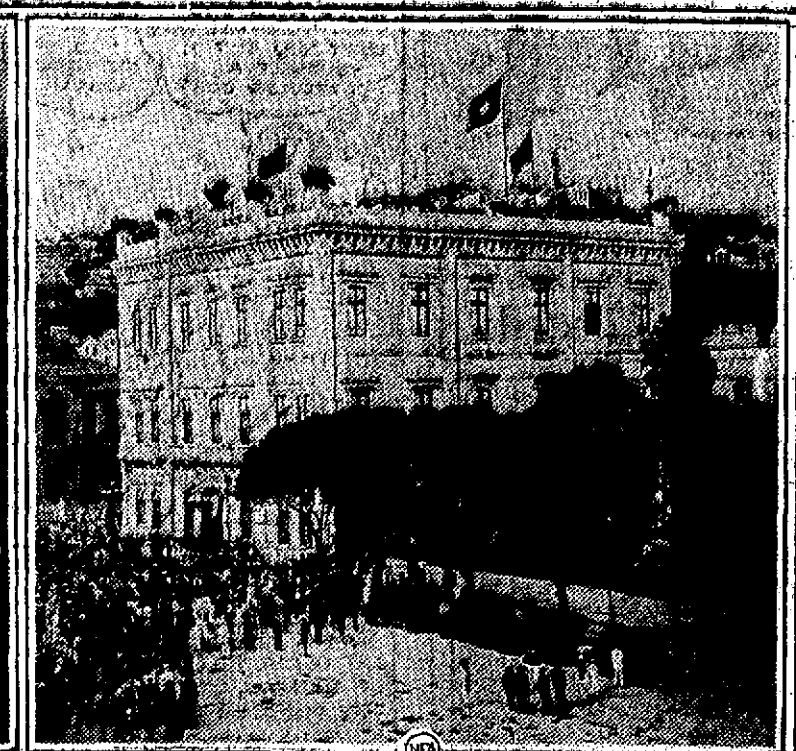

"I didn't!" the girl began.

"That's enough!" snapped Mrs. Mitchell. "You are not to be familiar with common working people!"

The girl's eyes blazed. "Don't you say that!" she cried. "My mother works, and she's not common!"

SPRING TIREDNESS, DRAGGY FEELING

Black-Draught Can't Be Beat As Cleansing Medicine, Says South Carolina Lady.

Townville, S. C.—"I have used Theodor's Black-Draught about fifteen years, at intervals," writes Mrs. J. M. Wicker of this place. "I look it for headache and that tired, draggy feeling one has in the spring. I used to have severe sick headaches.

"If I go to town for shopping, or if I am in a crowd and get very tired, or if I am the least bilious, I have a very severe headache and it puts me to bed.

"I heard of Black-Draught after my marriage when my children were small, and from then until now it has been a family medicine with us.

"I take a good dose of Black-Draught as soon as I feel a headache coming on, and it relieves me very quickly. I take Black-Draught for constipation, and am sure it can't be beat.

"I can certainly recommend Black-Draught and gladly do so. It seems that all families have to have a laxative, and Black-Draught is ours."

Clark County Man Presents Farm Plan

Outlines Plan Whereby all Farmers of County May Raise Food and Feed

ARKADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(AP)—At the last weekly Rotary Club luncheon here, T. N. Wilson, secretary of the Arkadelphia Chamber of Commerce, presented a plan which he expects will be an aid to the small farmer. It will be offered farmers in Clark county soon.

Wilson's plan is for all small farmers to raise all food stuffs necessary to feed his family and all the grain and hay to feed his livestock.

He plans to have the banks of the county issue statements to the effect that they are more willing to help the farmer who plants a diversified crop than the man who does not. He believes if a number of farmers in each township adopts the plan and finds it successful there will be no trouble in bringing the rest of the farms to the idea.

The crop Wilson would suggest is: One-half acre of Ribbon Cane for molasses; one acre Spanish peanuts; two and a half acres of loredio soy beans, sown for hay; two and a half acres of mammoth yellow, to cultivate and gather; one-eighth acre of purple top globe turnips, to gather the seed; two and one-half acres of velvet beans, planted in corn for livestock; one-half acre of butterbeans, to gather; five acres of corn and five acres of cotton. He gives as his reason for specifying a certain kind of seed that if a surplus is raised the farmers will find a more ready mar-

Stuttgart Citizen Attends Rice Meet

Five Rice Mills Now Operating in State. Plan to Mill Crop at Home

STUTTGART, Oct. 14.—(UP)—A. T. Sullivan, traffic counsel for the Arkansas Rice Millers Association who recently returned from Washington where he represented the Arkansas Association in a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission for the purpose of blocking attempts by Canadian rice millers to reduce freight rates on Arkansas rough rice shipments to Montreal 15 cents on every hundred pounds.

If the lower rate becomes effective the nine rice mills operating in Arkansas will find it difficult to compete with Canadian millers. Every effort is being put forth by the home millers to keep Arkansas products in Arkansas. The local mills operate only about four months in the year at present and it is feared further reduction in freight rates to northern competitors will force the Arkansas mills from operation.

At present there are five rice mills in operation in Stuttgart, two in De Witt, one in Lonoke and one in Carlisle. One of the Stuttgart mills shut-

Brother's Death Cause of Arrest

Philander Cook Suspected of Crushing Brother's Head With Stone

FAYETTEVILLE, Oct. 14.—No hearing has been set for Philander Cook, aged 19, of Spring Valley, north of here, held in jail following the death early yesterday of his brother, Carl Otis Cook, 24.

The latter was hurt fatally, officers say in a fight with his brother Wednesday. Officers say both were drunk. His head crushed, apparently by a blow with a stone, the older brother was taken to the Springdale hospital Friday.

Deputy sheriffs waited at the hospital, where Philander Cook was with his brother until the injured boy died. His mother and three brothers survive Carl Cook.

Stuttgart Man Produces High Quality Vegetables

STUTTGART, Ark., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Believe it or not, Rubie Slifer, truck farmer in this vicinity, came into town recently with string beans measuring a foot in length. The record breaking beans were grown in spite of the prevalent drought of the past season. In addition to the beans he had huge tomatoes and mammoth sweet potatoes, some weighing more than two pounds. He says they were all grown without the aid of irrigation.

A Formal Presentation For Southwest Arkansas

Fashion is but the outward manifestation of changing attitude toward the times. It symbolizes the differences that distinguish us from our Victorian grandparents... it is based on the artistic progress of the day... on the fancy of the hour... hence it is as unstable as mist before sunrise.

Style is everlasting... as eternal as classic culture, for style is founded on an understanding and an interpretation of the beautiful. Only those elements of style which display a beauty-born inspiration will remain to lend their influence to the creative talents of a later day.

Several progressive merchants of Hope have made special effort to present the best of the new styles in a style show at the Sanger Theatre, and in special window displays Wednesday night. They are ushering in the new Fall and Winter season with this Style Exposition, and window carnival of fashion, to be followed by three bargain days in Hope.

A purse of $50.00 is to be given to the first couple who will be married on the stage of the theatre during the Style Show.

You are cordially invited to witness the city-wide exposition of the new and the beautiful in the season's styles.

This Year of Grace in Fashions Revives Styles of "Dressed-up Periods" in Coats, Dresses and Suits

By GRETCHEN THOMSEN

Just imagine that the store which selects your fashions for you has invited you to make a trip to New York with their buyer or stylist and to visit the fashion establishments where the new fall garments are designed and created for you and hundreds of other smart American women. In fancy, see yourself going from place to place to dressmakers, coat, ensemble and millinery houses, seeing the mannequins parade in the fall creations. The designers, who have spent weeks in Paris at openings of famous houses and who have brought home models to be either copied exactly or adapted to suit American tastes and figures, are proudly superintending the display and explaining with great enthusiasm why this model or that is bound to be the greatest success—or falling over and over again that this is a season of suitability.

Parade of Styles

Now you are seated in the show room of a dressmaker (since you are very much interested in dresses at the very beginning of Autumn). The procession begins—one, two, three, four—you catch only a glimpse of something startling: different the models seem to appear in such rapid succession. You are dazzled at first and your only impression is "Beautiful, beautiful." Then you think, "How slender and graceful—it just isn't human for anyone to be so divinely slender." They are all slender—exactly the same—and they are all tall and graceful and they all have the daintiest feminine curves! You start to puzzle it out, and at last the light breaks. It is the dresses themselves, not the mannequins—it is the way the hips are draped and fitted and then gently start to flare at the knees that gives that illusion of heavenly slenderness. It is the way the bodices seem to be patterned after some artist's model. It is the scarfs, or the cleverer trimmings on the sleeves, or the panels that give that swaying, willowy grace.

Now you are beginning to observe details. You are recovering from the daze of seeing so much in so short a time and you note with interest that dress after dress is touched (you can hardly say trimmed) with fur. Little tabs on the corner of jabot or scarf—fur buttons, bows or band outlining the neck—and how it does flatter the face. What a subtle way to introduce a little white on black—that ermine band on the black satin dress. Then all at once the thought seizes you, "Are all the dresses black?" Black satin—black Canton crepe—black and white mixtures—black with a gold metal fleck—dozens of black dresses—it's frightfully smart but . . . ah! at last the colors you have heard so much about—and you are being told that brown will lead but it will be hard to find anything more gloriously rich and Autumn-like than the wine shades.

What's What in Coats

"Show the line, please, girls." You are now in a fashionable coat house and because it is your first visit since the fall opening you are to be shown the complete line of coats for all occasions.

"Swathed in fur," you whisper. Yes, madame, this is a year of fur trimmings. Fine fur is easy to get this year and you are going to be as luxurious as you desire. But don't for a moment think it is just "heap-ed up" fur—because it is the way your fur is applied that makes your "coat-smartness." There's always a trick up Fashion's sleeve—and this year you will find a good many tricks on Fashion's sleeve—usually in the way of fur. You see the silhouette isn't greatly changed except that bloused backs and bolero effects seem to have crowded out most of the capes—but you will see that the fur is manipulated very differently—the collars are higher than ever—there are novel borders and sleeve effects. You notice that the coats have the same slender effects as dresses and you wonder (audibly) how winter coats can look so sleek and still be warm. "It is in the weave," you are told, "as well as the way the coats are designed. The large collars and the semi-fitted lines that flare at the hems have a trick of making the waist and hip appear very small. They are also about three inches longer than last year."

A pause to allow you to gasp at the models stepping forth in coats as different from the ones you have just seen, as day from night. They are sturdy looking camel's hair, tweeds, bouclés, heavy surfaced and when they are not black and white mixtures or brown tints they are frankly colorful. "It is a question of suitability for the occasion," you are told. "Suitability"—are you never going to hear the last of that word? No, my dear, not this year. You will hear it when you buy your coats (not coats), your dresses of silks or satins or velvets for afternoon, your dresses of tweed or wool crepe, simply tailored for street or sports. You will hear it when you choose a knitted weave ensemble for your daughter to wear on the campus and when you choose her lapin or muskrat coat for the games—for you will probably also be shown a coat of caracul or Persian lamb which is "suitable" for evening.

On Suits and Ensembles

But before we get too deeply into furs, we will peep into a showing of suits and ensembles.

"Dressy suits first, girls," Mercy, are suits going to suit the occasion? "It all depends upon where you want to wear it," you are advised. "Why, I want to wear it for all daytime occasions," you exclaim. "Then madame I'd select a seven-eighths length jacket with fur collar and cuffs and, dress to match. Of course, if you wish a suit for the morning and one for the afternoon, then do not hesitate upon choosing a tweed with hip length or longer jacket for the activities of the day and a broadcloth or stued cloth with fur border as well as fur collars and cuffs—they are so chic and elegant for the smart tea or bridge, especially for the fall and early winter. Your day is over—you are tired but thrilled—you have seen so much you are bewildered and you are undoubtedly grateful to wake up and realize that after all you do not need to choose your fall fashions from such a vast array. You are feeling thankful for your good reliable fashion store right here in your own home town, whose daily experience in sifting out the "suitable" styles makes it possible for you to choose at your leisure and comfort, from well selected fashions that are sure to be right.

A coat this fall is only as smart as its silhouette and there are two types to choose from—the moulded, gently flaring silhouette and the type with bloused back. The flare is modified—hemline three inches longer than last

Chinese Girl to Sing in Opera

First member of her race to reach the heights of grand opera is Miriam Lellani, a Chinese-Hawaiian girl who is hailed by voice experts as a "second Marion Talley." Miss Lellani was photographed on the liner City of Los Angeles as she sailed from California for Hawaii, to make her first concert appearance on the island where she was born.

year—furs applied more generously than ever.

Styles in Dress Silhouettes

Throughout all the various types of dress silhouette and detail one feature manifests itself—the smooth hip line. The tunic, bolero, draped neckline and leg-o'-mutton sleeve are the outstanding new features—daytime frocks favor pleats, while formal gowns adhere to flare treatment. The accepted length for daytime is the middle of the calf of the leg, while late afternoon and evening gowns swirl gracefully around the feet. Canton crepe is the favorite of silks for afternoon, with satin, velvet and metal embellished crepe following. Thawel tweed on light weight woollens win for tailored and sports types of frocks.

Ensembles divide themselves into two classes—the dressy type, of smooth velvety fabric, richly fur trimmed, with blouse of metal cloth or satin . . . and the sports or tailored type of tweed and sturdy woollens—the jacket very long—in some cases to the very hem of the skirt, and trimmed with the sports type of fur.

Flower Garden to Be Mark of Peace

Garden Covering Thousands of Acres to Be Planted

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(UP)—A flower garden covering thousands of acres, to be established on the boundary line of the United States and Canada as a living memorial to the century of peace between the two countries, is the plan of the National Association of Gardeners. It is sponsored by an international committee of prominent men and women in the two countries.

Donald J. Crighton, chairman of the international committee on the International Peace Garden, said that the plans call for a site easy of access to visitors from both countries. "The International Peace Garden will be one of the show places of America," Crighton said. "It will be established half on Canadian, half on American soil. All flowers and shrubs native to both countries will be included. Those that do not thrive in the rigorous northern climate will be grown under glass. The garden will be presented to the governments of Canada and the United States as a mutual property upon completion. Necessary arrangements relative to land grants have been made."

The project was adopted by the association at the annual meeting of 1929 in Toronto, at the suggestion of Henry J. Moore, horticulturalist of Ontario, Canada. At the 1930 annual meeting, October 14, 15 and 16 in Washington, the names of national and international organizations which have offered co-operation will be announced. President Hoover will greet association representatives on the White House lawn.

Supreme Court Rules On Sale of Chow Dog

NEW BRIGHTON, N. Y., Oct. 13.—(UP)—A chow dog owned by Mrs. Annabell M. Pierce, was the subject of a supreme court action here.

The dog had been sold by Mrs. Pierce's husband to Carl Duerr, who made a $50 deposit. Later Pierce called the deal of fund refunded Duerr's money. Duerr then instituted court proceedings to retain ownership of the dog.

The court decided against him.

Board Averts Ruling On School Bible Study

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Possibility of a religious controversy over Biblical instruction in the public schools has been avoided by the State Board of Education.

On the heels of an attorney general's ruling that the Bible could not even be used as a reference in literary and civics courses, George L. Clithero, Spokane, presented a petition asking a state board hearing on compulsory Bible instruction.

The board held it had no jurisdiction to make a decision of any kind, and that it was a constitutional question. It refused to take any action.

Beauty Hints for the Well-Groomed Woman

Summer takes its toll in sunburned skins and peeling noses. The wind-blown effect that accords well enough with the more informal costumes of summer is not in such perfect accord with the more formal apparel and activities of fall. So the women who are careful of her grooming will wish to put her complexion, hair and nails in trim for the autumn season.

A natural tan is most becoming to certain types—but the smooth, even tan so much desired is, unfortunately, seldom achieved. To get rid of the uneven effect will take careful work. One of the best ways is to treat oneself to a course of good facials. But if this is too expensive or time consuming very good results may be accomplished at home with patience and constant care. Here the faithful lemon comes in mixed with glycerine, rubbed on the skin after it has been well cleansed with soap and water and allowed to remain for about ten minutes—then washed off and a good cream worked in for the night is an excellent method. There are some very good complexion bleaches on the market also but care must be taken that they are not too strong for your particular type of skin. The daily cleansing of the skin with both oil or theatrical cold cream, followed by a thicker type of cream is the most satisfactory way of keeping the complexion always clear and fine in texture.

The Care of the Nails

Going over the nails each night assures that constant well groomed look much better than the weekly trip to the manicure and an almost entire neglect of the nails until the next visit. Tiny stiff brushes at the end of a long stick are excellent for cleansing the nails. They get in every curve and leave the nails perfectly clean and white. There are so many "excellent" nail polishes nowadays—the liquid polishes are very satisfactory—but be careful that you do not choose too bright a pink.

At the end of summer when the hair has been bleached and conserved by the sun it is a good plan to take a number of hot oil treatments. This may be done at home, if you wish. Just heat the oil and rub it well into the scalp—leave over night and shampoo the hair in the morning. Be sure—always—that you have rinsed every bit of soap out of your hair. It is best to dry the hair with a towel as heat removes too much of the natural oil.

Require Special Attention

Since the permanent wave has a tendency to dry the hair, it is a good plan to follow it up with hot oil treatments. To have a permanent wave and then assume that your hair will naturally always be in perfect wave is a mistake. It will, in fact, require constant attention. Your wave must be set every time you have a shampoo or your hair will have a fuzzy, irregular wave.

Modern methods of giving permanents are so improved that there is really little harm done to the hair by having one, but it is best to take the advice of a skilled operator before deciding to have such a wave.

Blue-Winged Teal Ducks Arrive in North Carolina

OCRAKE ISLAND, N. C., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Blue-winged teal, to the duck world what midget cars are to the automobile world, are more numerous than ever in Ocrake water this year. These sport model ducks stop over on their flight to the rice fields farther south where they spend the winter, but usually have left before November 1, when it is legal to shoot them in North Carolina.

The teal fly in and out among the mallards, but never follow the larger birds to their feeding place.

School Problem Reversed in Washington Situation

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 13.—(UP)—How to get children to go to school is a frequent problem, but in Clark county the usual order has been reversed.

Dale McMullen, prosecutor, wrote to ask the attorney general's office whether a high school had to admit persons who had already graduated as students.

"As long as they are of school age," was E. W. Anderson's assistant attorney general, answer to the question.

Intimate Apparel The Very Foundation of Fall Chic

By GRETCHEN THOMSEN

A decidedly feminine tendency in undergarments is the outcome, no doubt, of the lady-like fashions in outer apparel. Lace trimming—sheerest of silks, delicate colors—it has even gone so far that nightgowns are given preference over the boyish pajamas. Speaking of nightgowns we may mention right here that the ensemble idea has become so widespread that little bed jackets are being made to match them and the most adorable, lacy little bits of femininity they are. To follow the fashion trend, nightgowns this season are being increased to ankle and instep length, and in many instances to floor length. Many of the new models are instep-length in front and floor-length in back. Others cling to the short front and adopt the ankle-length back.

trimming. It is employed to insert godets, around the waistline, at the neckline and the armholes. Appliques and enervations are also employed extensively on the new lingerie.

The majority of pajamas are youthful, two-piece models which are typically sleeping pajamas.

Princess line slips with the flares disposed of in various ways are suitable in outer apparel, while the wrap-around slip is said to be one of the favorites in the straightline group.

The fitted, flared silhouette extends also to panties and chemises. Godets of self-material or of lace, and flares placed at the sides are favorite ways

Danger Even Lurks Under Home Roofs

Housewives Daily Expose Themselves to Dangers of Other Workers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Being "safely" at home does not always have its bright side.

A survey made by a large insurance company shows that last year 24,000 persons lost their lives as a result of accidents occurring in the home, a total almost equal to that of the fatal automobile toll for the same year.

In a statement issued by the Woman's Bureau of the Labor Department it is pointed out that approximately 2,500,000 women engaged in domestic service and 23,000,000 housewives expose themselves to similar accidents that endanger other workers.

With 44 states having workmen's compensation laws, only one, New Jersey, allows compensation for domestic workers injured in the home.

Over one-third of home accidents were caused by falls, and of these falls more than one-half were met with by elderly persons. Children's playthings, seemingly harmless toys, can often be the cause of fatal accidents, according to the bureau. They accounted for a great number of falls suffered last year.

Other menaces found in the home include burning caused by stoves and scalding water, shocks from electricity, leaking gas, and poisonous medicines which are often improperly marked.

of elaborating chemises and panties. Many of the chemises have tucked waistlines in addition to the flared skirts.

Many smart women are choosing petticoats, feeling that the foundation garments and the fashion importance of woolen frocks makes the upper section of the slip unnecessary in many instances. These are fitted too, with the waistline usually adopting a yoke similar to the yokes employed on French panties.

Ideas in Flannel Robes Tailored flannel robes, either in plain colors trimmed with contrasting self material or in blazer stripes are also strongly endorsed this season. These as well as the quilted robes adopt princess lines.

Pike's Peak Fireworks Ready For New Year's

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Fred Morath, president of the AdAmAn Club, has announced that the New Year's Eve fireworks for Pike's Peak are packed and ready to be placed in position.

Morath said the fireworks would be taken up the mountain on the last cog train to leave before the company ceases operations for the winter, probably this month.

KITCHEN COLORS BRING CHEER

Here's the Story on New Effects

It may be said to be a brilliant performance indeed—this daily act of preparing food in the modern kitchen. These days, the kitchen tools have blossomed into more colors than the hollyhocks know. Ivory white is a favorite in enamel ware, with rose pink or apple green handles. All the knives, spoons, forks, spatulas and cake beaters have had gay colors for some time, but now even the good old general utility grinders have painted handles.

Of course, breakfast sets, and dining room furniture have rejoiced in bright surges for these many days. We wonder how they feel now that the kitchen sink, the kitchen range and all the extra equipment of cabinets and small tables and shelves have joined their coats.

Tile or porcelain tops on small tables have proved so practical that all the kitchen helps have them—cabinets with tile tops, small tables with drop leaves of porcelain and the kitchen cabinet has its shelf of hard white surface.

Besides porcelain for table tops, new metals are prepared for many kitchen utensils. One of these that is stainless, will not rust, nor cook into foods, combines nickel and chromium. Pan, kettle and cooker is cast in this new metal, and cups, pitchers, ladles and dish pans are made of it.

In good old aluminum ware, a new roster is cast, with a beaten surface, suggesting hand hammered silver. It is quite handsome enough to appear on the table. Other utility pieces, the fry pans for deep fat frying and the shallow ones, too, have heavy ebony handles, that give the housewife a firm grip on the article.

To go back to the garden varieties of colors, one mustn't forget the gay enamel shelves. Sets of spice boxes, bottles for vinegar and oil and covered jars for rice, etc., are painted to match.

Pottery sets for kitchen use come in plain colors and with decorations. Some wear polka dots, some are decorated with flowers, others with checks like gingham. These sets include besides three baking bowls, pitchers and mugs and refrigerator sets.

College Tries Out New Plan of Study

System Proved Effective in Few Schools Where Used Is Said

FRANKLIN, Ind., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Franklin college has adopted the distinction plan whereby students of high scholarship are freed from classroom attendance and are permitted to spend their entire time on specialized study.

This system has been used in only a few colleges in this country but has proved very effective, it was said.

Under the distinction plan students are picked from the classes and given faculty sponsors. A faculty "council of distinction" meets at regular intervals and plans study for the chosen students. The distinctive members can attend any or no classes and have privileges similar to faculty members. Part of their tuition is also remitted. At the end of two years the students appear before the council and present a thesis or some special work they have prepared during their time. This is the basis on which they are graded.

Four students entered under the new system at Franklin this year. They were Miss Eloise Stout, Chicago, Ill., who was studying standard criticism of all English literature; Miss Tracey Scott, Franklin, Ind., with a major in contemporary English and American literature; Miss Louise Ketch, Trafalgar, Ind., whose work was the problem of self-training of the social engineer; and Miss Katherine Miller, Laporte, Ind., who was studying American civilization and culture.

Sunday School Claims New Endurance Records

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 16.—(UP)—The First Baptist Church of Fayetteville claims several attendance endurance records among its Sunday School officers.

Four of the officers re-elected at the recent annual meeting have held their posts continuously for periods ranging from 35 to 48 years.

James A. Vann, financial secretary, has not missed attendance for 33 years.

Increase In Air Travel to London

Passengers May Total Over 30,000 For This Year

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Passenger travel by air between London and Paris has increased from 716 in 1919 to 22,346 in 1929. More than 30,000 passengers are expected to be carried by commercial airplanes over this route during 1930.

Instead of tiny, single-motored, two-seater made-over army planes without wireless telephone, meteorological service, aid of control towers or the assistance of engineers, huge air liners fully equipped now whisk 20 passengers over the 225 miles to two and a half hours.

Instead of a fare of 20 guineas, i. e. $100, a fee of $29 is charged and a week-end round trip rate of $33 is effective.

Four Imperial Airways machines and four slightly smaller Air Union airplanes leave daily from Croydon.

Twenty-six airplanes, four of them freighters, operated by the Deutsche Luft Hansa organization, now leave Croydon and carry their passengers, air mail and freight to all parts of Europe.

A dozen other planes owned by Dutch and Belgian companies, besides a large and increasing army of private planes, roar above Croydon. In 1919, the first year of London-Paris commercial aviation service, 27 passengers per week days made the trip. Those were the days when pilots had to be scribbled and passed along, and when every flight was considered a brave venture.

Last year 71 air travelers daily made the journey from Croydon to the Continent and this year about 50 a day, for the entire year, is the estimated number.

Between 300 and 400 women now travel weekly to Paris by airplane.

Silent Barbers Urge By Association Head

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Alden Warmelin, a vice president of the Associated Master Barbers of America, believes barbers should shave more and talk less.

At a convention of barbers here recently he suggested that patrons "don't want to be bothered with aimless conversation." Sound judgment should be used by barbers before they start talking to the man in the chair. "For the chances are he is tired and would rather relax," Warmelin said.

'Sweets' Weigh 20 Pounds

Changes to Aid Industry

HOPE, Ark., Oct. 14.—(UP)—The changes in the strict mining laws which became effective here, are expected by local engineers to renew activity on many of the old mines. It is pointed out that the new laws will place the mining laws on a basis similar to that of the Diaz regime. The modification was brought about by the suggestion of the Mexican Mining Congress.

Schneider, in the former homes of cliff dwellers and Pueblo and Hopi Indians.

Midwives Work Decreases

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Employment of midwives at child birth has decreased from seven per cent in 1920 to 3.27 per cent of the 55,619 births reported in 1929, the State Health Department disclosed today. The midwives were employed to greater extent last year in 22 Wisconsin cities having a population of 10,000 or more than in rural communities.

ACCESSORIES Add SPICE to the Modern LIVING ROOM

Here is the question: Just what is it that takes one living room out of the conventional class and places it in the group that your memory labels unusual or distinguished?

Take the orthodox davenport and two chairs to match, for a beginning—why is it that one home maker makes this the foundation for an illusive charm in her living room while another achieves a hopeless banality?

On this matter of davenport—"sets" as we know them—even sets have their fashion trend. For one thing there is much wider choice in the mohair covering. The colors are brighter and come in a wider range. Tapestry is used more, and is combined with mohair. At first "buttoned tufting" sounds terribly technical, but it just means those little buttons on the back of a chair that fasten the covering down; something like tying a comfort.

Antique nail heads are used for their decorative effect. Davenport fronts have curved aprons for a new feature. Serpentine fronts grace some suites. Then the set back arm, in the French provincial manner are characteristics of some sets. Last of all we should mention that having purchased your davenport you really needn't have your other chairs match at all.

When it comes to small tables, a whole book could be written on them. There is the end table for the davenport for one, a coffee table for another, a small table to stand by the big deep chair, a pie crust table for tea time, perhaps a small nest of tables and the tall console table against the wall. Coffee tables, in our book, should have a chapter all their own. A Shearson table has a glass covered tray, and runs on casters. A maple or pine reproduction of an antique style has four legs of spindle type with a single drop leaf.

Old card tables are copied in modern workmanship. Some of these have folded tops. The top when opened is swung around and makes a convenient square for the card players. Screens are effective accessories. These have a varied treatment as do our walls. One that comes to mind has a small patterned glazed chintz covering, with quaint old floral prints spaced to a panel.

Cuba Reports Population

HAVANA, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Revenue totaling $18,000,000 was collected by the Department of Public Works during the fiscal year, 1929-30, according to Dr. Carlos Miguel de Cespedes, secretary of the department.

This amount represents the total in duties, imports, customs house revenues and gasoline sales, all of them coming under the special department of public works fund. Although this is reported to be a slight decrease from 1927-28 the $5,000,000 which was derived from gasoline sales represents an increase of $129,471 over last year.

Cuba's extensive new program of public improvements, including the new Central Highway and the Capital building is being paid for from these funds.

Charge Schools Used as Propaganda Medium

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Charges that Wisconsin schools are being used for propaganda purposes will be aired before the Wisconsin Teachers Association at its annual meeting October 30 to November 1, it has been indicated in a preliminary statement.

A committee, reported that it had been analyzing the problem during the last year, and announced that it would display thousands of propaganda exhibits, collected through the co-operation of 20 school systems.

Worn Out Planes Are To Be Bombed

Destroying Worn Out
Planes to Take Place on November 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(UP)—The Army's war-birds will swoop down on Camp Stanley near San Antonio, Texas, on November 1 and let loose powerful bombs in an attempt to destroy a fleet of grounded airplanes.

This program of destruction, outlined by the War Department today, is designed to show whether fragmentation, or demolition bombs would be more effective in a war-time role against any enemy airframe.

Twenty worn-out army planes will be the target of the attackers, 18 planes of the third attack group from Fort Crockett, Galveston, Texas. The test will be the first of this nature ever attempted by the Air Corps.

First, the attackers will drop low over Stanley Field and drop a destructive cargo of fragmentation bombs on the planes below. Then they will rise to swoop again, this time letting loose 100-pound demolition bombs.

What remains of the grounded airplanes after these two raids will be attacked again with incendiary machine-gun bullets. Army officers hope to learn much from this last attack about the effect of such bullets in burning enemy planes and exploding their gas tanks.

Men Like Blue Best While Women Pick Red

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Blue is the most attractive color to men, while women show preference for "warm" colors in merchandise and colored advertisements, Ferdinand Aumuller, Milwaukee, told delegates to the 13th annual convention of the International Direct Mail Advertising Association.

Aumuller emphasized the difference in color preferences of the sexes in revealing the results of personal tests. He said 44 per cent of all men chose blue as the color they liked best in all fields of purchase including clothes and automobiles. Red was the next preference and purple third.

Red headed the list for women followed by purple, blue, green, orange and yellow.

Friend's Check Bounces Back to Johnny Risko

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Johnny Risko, whose bouncing around the ring has baffled several of the top flight heavyweight contenders, was given a sharp blow when two checks, totaling $175, came bouncing back him.

Risko told police he cashed the checks on a California bank, for a "friend" and they came back bearing the notation, "no account." Efforts to locate the "friend" were unavailing.

Bears Knock Wagon and Team Over Cliff

VERNON, B. C., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Ways and means of dodging fighting bears that come rolling down a mountain proved a puzzle to Archie McGregor who, with his team of horses, landed in tree tops after being knocked from the road by a furry juggernaut.

McGregor was driving his team along a narrow mountain road when two bears, locked together in true fighting manner, rolled down on top of them. The horses and driver were hurled off the road, and over a short cliff.

The horses were tangled in their harness, and McGregor had to hike two miles for an axe to free them. Nobody was badly hurt.

Sea Gull Just Ruins This Man's Golf Game

ABERDEEN, Wash., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Sea gulls were blamed for spoiling a good golf match between Bob Wolfraim of Portland and Hugh Miller on the Grays Harbor course here recently.

Wolfraim was playing an excellent game up to the seventh hole. His drive there was near perfect, the ball rolling far down the fairway. Suddenly a gull swooped down, pounced on the bouncing, rolling ball and soared away, apparently swallowing the little white ball, or taking it home for little gulls to play with.

The golfer could find no rue to cover such an occurrence, and anyway, the interference upset him so completely that his game was off the rest of the round.

Misunderstanding Leads to Negro's Confession

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Detectives told M. C. McDowell, negro, accused of stealing a pistol, that unless he confessed he would be fingerprinted and branded as a thief, and his picture hung in the rogues' gallery.

McDowell understood that his fingers would be branded and that he would be hanged in a dungeon. He didn't want to be maimed and hanged, so confessed.

German Police Dog Has Spartan Courage

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 14.—(UP)—A German police dog remained a prisoner on the roof of a building here for two days with no food or water but without howling for help. At intervals he would walk to the edge of the roof and look over. Finally Miss Blanche Walden saw him and told police.

The police put in a call for the fire department, and a ladder truck went to the animal's assistance. When brought down the dog was weak from lack of food. It was believed he had fallen to the roof from an adjoining window.

Styles Are Planned For a Fellow With a Figure tapered waist and a bit of flare at the hip. Peak lapels on these are moderately broad but not long. This is the young man's dress coat of the season.

For knockabout purposes two styles present themselves. In the topcoat a semi box effect with half-belt at back and made of camel's hair or shetland or other fleeces. These fleeces are also shown to some extent in the raglan model.

The other style is more inherent in the overcoats. This coat also comes in the fleecy fabrics mentioned above or in heavy wools such as chinchillas, Schotches and heavyweight tweeds. It is double-breasted and has either the belt back or the all-around-belt that loops in front. It is a hybrid between the burly box and the ulster. Then there will be the shorter box coats in both single and double-breasted models. In the shorter coats of this type a great many covers are being shown.

The Chesterfield coat which hasn't promised much in recent seasons is more favorably considered this year. Many fine models are being shown in the smarter lines. They are single-breasted, fly front, tube model and with either velvet or self collar.

The Raglan coat in contrast to the Chesterfield, has been predicted as a leader for several seasons, but it never seems to quite catch on with the better dressers. It is still being shown and much mentioned in the forecasts but we believe it will not gain many new followers beyond the limited coterie that some reason or other like this type of coat. Returning to the subject of Guard Coats we believe that you are going to see a lot of them of fine blue, grey and brown chinchillas this winter. Also those that can afford them will wear these fitted styles in fine Montagnacs but inasmuch as a real Montagnac cannot be had much under $100 to $125, this will be distinctly a plutocrat style.

In shower clothes the styles are divided between the Trench coat in "Guard" model and the slicker in raglan effect.

Last year Billy "made the front pages" when broken bones sustained through his childhood reached a total of 38. Not content with that Billy recently sustained a broken leg when he fell from a chair, raising the total to 39.
